Hancock taxes to increase 5%

BY D.C. HARVILL

Based on the fiscal 1988-89 millage levied by the Board of Supervisors Thursday, Hancock County taxpayers will be greeted by a 5 percent tax increase when they receive their property tax bills this January.

The county's new millage will be 43.86 for a 3.59 mill increase from 40.27 last year and the county school district rate will be 35.93 up slightly from last year's 35.58 mills for a total millage of 79.79.

Four additional mills will be levied against property in the county's four fire protection districts.

A mill represents $1 in tax against every $1,000 of a property's assessed value.

The county's total assessed property value is $127 million, but the amount collected next year will only be $116,000 instead of $127,000, according to Ken Walker, county controller.

Ten-year exemptions granted to major businesses by the State Tax Commission and non-payment of taxes account for most of the difference, Walker explained.

According to County Assessor Max Collier, Edward Murach, an $100,000 home occupied by the owner and not in a fire district will be taxed on 10 percent of its real value, or $798 at next year's 79.79 mill rate.

With homestead exemption that amount will be reduced by $240 to $558, Murach added.

Bourg appeals decision on Nov. 8 candidacy

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hilda L. Bourg, disqualified earlier this week as a candidate for Beat Three supervisor, has taken her appeal of the Hancock County Election Commission's decision to court.

Her candidacy had been turned down by the election commission on the advice of County Attorney, Gerald Gex, who said Bourg's recent resignation from the Democratic Executive Committee had not kept her from being covered by a statute barring people involved in election preparations from running for other offices during their terms as election commissioners.

Gex said he feels that the statute also applies to Bourg.

Bourg submitted a petition of appeal to Circuit Judge James Thomas on Friday, asking that she be certified as a candidate.

Bourg presented 14 reasons why she feels she should not have been denied candidacy in a decision based on two recent court cases, Breland vs. Mallett and Meeks vs. Tallahatchie County, both of which were decided by the Mississippi Supreme Court.

The Breland vs. Mallett decision, which involved a Stone County Democratic Executive Committee member who was a candidate in a primary election, had disqualified the plaintiff because he had participated in a Democratic primary election.

Bourg is contending that the case does not apply because the Nov. 8 election is a special election that will be the sole responsibility of the Hancock County Election Commission, therefore not involving the Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee.

In addition, her appeal states that "county party executive

Mauffray resigns Demo executive slot

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Democratic Executive Committee member Conrad L. Mauffray submitted a letter of resignation to the Hancock County Democratic Party executive committee in protest to a state law barring members from seeking other elected positions.

Mauffray's resignation comes in the wake of Hilda Bourg being turned down by the Hancock County Election Commission last week in her bid for supervisor of district three.

Bourg had recently resigned as a member of the Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee and was seeking the unexpired supervisor's post in the November election.

On Friday Bourg, filed a Petition of Appeal in Hancock County Circuit Court seeking to have the Hancock County Election Commissioners' disqualification reversed.

Mauffray's letter of resignation states "...We are members of the executive committee by virtue of having met in caucus with other voters, at a publicized place and time, and having been elected from their numbers to serve on the committee. We certify candidates for the primaries, tally the votes on election night, certify the results of the election, report the results to the State, and many other duties, requiring many hours of work for which we receive no pay.

"This results in the saving of many thousands of dollars for the taxpayers. A noble deed for a noble cause. Right? What do we receive? Thanks, sometimes! What else do we receive? We are penalized and treated like second-rate citizens! We, who through active participation, show the greatest interest in our government, are penalized.

"The laws of the State of Mississippi prohibit any member of a party executive committee from seeking public office during their term on that committee. Even if the member resigns, thereby precluding his or her participation in the certifying of the candidates or the results, they cannot seek public office. As a matter of fact, the law says you cannot resign your term.

"A senator, congressman, sheriff, judge, mayor and others, elected by the thousands, may resign and run for another office. ...But the poor volunteer executive committee member, elected by as little as 15 votes, cannot resign and seek office.

Five netted in BaySide drug bust

BY D.C. HARVILL
Five were arrested Thursday in a BaySide Park drug bust. The execution of a search warrant for a house on Hancock Drive in BaySide Park Thursday evening led to the arrests by Hancock County Sheriff's officers, according to Glenn Strong, the sheriff's investigator in charge of the case.

Charged with possession of a controlled substance (under one ounce of marijuana) are Robert Poyadon, 24, of 508 DeMontluzin St., Bay St. Louis; Charles Cosplich, 27, of 401 State St., Bay St. Louis; Robin L. Stevens, 22, of 123 Amar St., Waveland. All three are presently out of jail on $500 bonds.

Charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute are Michael Aupied, 24, and Mary A. Thornton, 22; both of 1011 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis.

Aupied and Thornton are presently in jail awaiting an appearance before a justice court judge to have their bonds set.

Officers assisting Strong in the arrest were deputies Greg Lichtenstein, David Garcia, Matt Karl, Bobby Ray Necaise and R.D. Ladner.

Hancock man arrested for pot possession

BY D.C. HARVILL
A Hancock County man was arrested Wednesday on drug possession charges. Leonard Denning, 30, was arrested by sheriff's officers at 8:45 p.m. after a search of his residence at 10740 Limu Way in Holiday Village subdivision, north of Diamondhead, turned up an undetermined amount of marijuana, according to Investigator Glenn Strong. Denning is charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute. He is out of jail on a $2,500 bond.

Assisting on the arrest were deputies Gerald Necaise, Terry Roberson, Matt Karl and Pete Marchetta.

Consumer Update

On Debt Collection

By Janet K. Lukens, Area Consumer Management Specialist
With uncollectible debt well over $21 billion, creditors have turned to professional debt collectors to recover unpaid bills. The fact that professional bill collectors exist motivates many people to pay. By increasing collected debt and reducing the creditor's collection costs, the collector helps to hold town costs for both creditor and consumer. The usual first step of a debt collector is to send a form requesting payment. The form indicates the name of the creditor, the amount owed, and certain consumer rights under the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act.

If the collector does not receive a response to the requests, the collector may contact the consumer by phone. When contact is made by mail or phone the collector's objective is to motivate the consumer to pay. If the consumer is short of money to make a full payment, the collector will usually work out a payment schedule. As professionals, debt collectors have a national standard of conduct enacted in Congress known as the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act. The law was designed to see that people are treated fairly by prohibiting unjust means of debt collection. The law does not, however, cancel genuine debts which consumers owe.

Congress specifically prohibited the following practices as "harassment" in the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act: use threats of violence to harm anyone or anyone's property or reputation, publish a list of consumers which says you refuse to pay your debts, use obscene or profane language, repeatedly use the telephone to annoy anyone, telephone any person without identifying the caller, and advertise your debt. A debt collector may contact you in person, by mail, telephone or telegram but not at inconvenient or unusual times or places, such as before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m., unless you agree. A debt collector may not contact you at work if your employer disapproves. For more information on Fair Debt Collection, contact the Consumer Money Management Center at 388-4710.

committees have no role in municipal elections, school board elections or special elections."

Bourg explains that a county party executive committee's functions are limited only to primaries in county, state and federal elections. In the Nov. 8 election, there will be only two county elections, the beat three and four school board races and the five election commission races. The latter must be certified by the chancery clerk.

She contends that "after the primary election, the provisions of the election code, which apply to election officials, do not apply to county executive members." She has also pointed out that the county election commissioners receive per diem pay, while executive committee members are unpaid volunteers who are not classified as county employees.

Also, Bourg points out that under Section 23-15-153 of the Mississippi Code, county election commissioners are given authority over the pollbooks. They may add or delete names, but a member of a party executive committee is not able to do so. She also states in the appeal document that county election commissioners are elected while party executive committee members are chosen during a party caucus subject to party rules and that Mississippi Code Section 23-15-217 "should not apply to executive committee members seeking election in a nonpartisan special election." The election to be held Nov. 8, 1988, was declared nonpartisan as the Hancock County Election Commission voted unanimously to certify an employee of the United States Postal Service. Therefore, the Hatch Act of 1939 was not applied.

"The Hatch Act states that a nonpartisan election is one where none of the candidates running for office are representatives of the Democratic or Republican parties. A primary election is defined in Webster's New World Dictionary as a local meeting of voters of a given political party to select delegates."

She explained that Breland was actually involved in the primary cited in his case, to the extent of handling ballots and election paraphernalia.

The appeal document also states that in the Meeks case, the court upheld that an election commissioner cannot resign the commission prior to qualifying for office.

"The county executive members are volunteers whose rights are protected by the constitution and the freedom of choice to join or resign from an organization should be upheld." "I resigned from the Hancock County Executive Committee on Sept. 8, 1988."

"For the above reasons, I am offended by being under the suspicion of fraud, when this would have been impossible," Bourg's document states, adding that because the two cases cited as reasons for her to be disqualified are not similar, her name should be placed on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Bourg herself was not available for comment Saturday.

POLITICS OF PRIVACY

How much does the public have a right to know about candidates seeking the presidency?

The complex issue of privacy and fairness in political reporting is debated by leading journalists and politicians in the election special "The Politics of Privacy" at 9 p.m., Monday, Sept. 26, on Mississippi ETV.

A panel of public figures grapples with the issue, including: Jeanne Kirkpatrick, U.S. Sen. Alan Simpson (R-Wyoming), Peter Jennings, Mike Wallace, Geraldine Ferraro, Liz Smith and Katharine Graham.

The diverse positions of the panelists mirror the dilemma between the public's right to know and the candidate's individual right to privacy.

OEDIPUS

Sophocles' powerful tale of tragic king Oedipus of Thebes continues when ETV presents "Oedipus at Colonus."

Airing at 9 p.m., Friday, Sept. 23, the two-hour drama features Anthony Quayle as the exiled king, a blind vagabond. An authentic, yet up-to-date translation featuring innovative costumes and timeless settings, "Oedipus at Colonus" tells the tale of the doomed king's journey from ignominy to immortality.

Side Street Crossings

By Dena Bisnette

Twice now we in Hancock County have sat and waited for a storm that didn't come. Thank God. That last hurricane looked like a monster on the television map.

During Florence, I got a chance to try to give something back to my community by working at Civil Defense. Bobby Boudin, the director, uses my husband Joe as a radio operator and was kind enough to give me something to do so I wouldn't have to be separated from Joe.

Civil Defense had its act down, opening shelters, collecting information on the storm's position, making arrangements with Red Cross, National Guard, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and other agencies, and doing everything else that needs to be done when a storm is on the way. Hurricane Florence made a great test run.

Some of the local people I took telephone calls from that night had their acts together too. Callers mostly wanted to know where the storm was, what time it would hit and where they should go.

Some of them knew exactly what to do and simply wanted to make sure the shelter nearest them was the same one as last time.

They weren't the ones I was worried about. It was the ones who didn't know anything.

Several callers told me they were new to the area, gave me a street address and asked if evacuation would be advisable. One was angry because the shelter where he wanted to go, NASA, was open only to its own employees. Another wanted simply to visit and tell me what she'd done during the hurricane in 1947 or whatever.

I don't mind helping people with information, during a storm or anytime. That's my job here. But when it comes to a hurricane, those of you who called and those of you who just sat home and wondered should have already known everything I told you.

I'll ask you a question. How many times have you watched your television set and seen someone telling you how to take care of yourself during a hurricane, or for that matter, some other sort of natural disaster? I am convinced that there were people out there who didn't call me because they had paid attention to such programming, even the instructions about staying tuned to your local station in order to track the storm.

The day a storm is about to hit is not the time to find out about hurricanes, just as the time the power goes out is not the time to buy candles or an oil lamp, or worse yet, wonder where you put them.

Please find out ahead of time. I don't mind if you call, but I will worry less about you if I am sure you already know what to do.

If you have already educated yourself on hurricane precautions, then all you will have to do is prepare your home, pack and leave if you're in a dangerous area, or sit tight and ride it out if you're safe on high ground.

Maybe then, Florence and Gilbert will have been a good test run for you too.

Pray for good weather but know how to keep yourself safe if the answer to your prayers happens to be "Not today."

Most of the 5 percent increase is accounted for by a new, 1.6 millage for libraries, 1.6 mills for new construction at Pearl River Junior College and a 0.6 mill increase for the roads and bridges fund, according to Walker.

Millage for the county's general fund rose from 19.34 to a new rate of 21.2 and the road and bridge fund will increase to 3.45 mills from 3.05.

The county's total budget for the new fiscal year is $12 million for an increase of 4.3 percent over last year's $11.5 million.

Included in the new budget is a 5 percent pay raise for most county employees to be effective January 1.

Added to the 1988-89 budget are two new two new items: $60,000 for the county's new recreation department and $30,000 for a purchasing department.

Also contributing to the increase are: an increase, from $139,000 to $323,000, for the development of a new sanitary landfill site and an increase for the sheriff's department from $520,000 to $600,000.

Navy, NASA unveil exhibit honoring Mississippi POW/MIAs

Captain William A. Raines, USN, chief of staff for the command, Naval Oceanography Command, has, in commemoration of National POW/MIA Memorial Day, presented John C. Stennis Space Center Director Jerry Hlass with an exhibit honoring the 18 Mississippi servicemen still unaccounted for in Indochina.

The three-by-four-foot freestanding display, a gift from Naval Oceanography Command, bears the names, ranks, services and hometowns of the missing men. It will remain on permanent display in the NASA Visitor's Center in Hancock County. Rear Admiral James E. Koehr, USN, is commander, Naval Oceanography Command.

The POW/MIAs are Maj. Gregory Inman Barras, USAF, Jackson; Capt. Thomas Waring Bennett Jr., USAF, Natchez; Staff Sgt. Elbert Wayne Bush, USA, Jackson; Capt. Howard Rudolph Cody, USAF, Gulfport; Capt. "QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

We have had our share of rain in recent days, yet there have been very few complaints about it as everyone would rather see rain instead of Hurricane Gilbert.

Gilbert has probably been the most publicized storm prior to striking our main land in history.

More people have been glued to the television and/or listening to a radio during the past week than in the history of a hurricane.

We are proud of our officials and the officials all along the Gulf Coast for the preparations which have been made for the killer hurricane.

There have been many Hancock Countians who have fled the area, awaiting Gilbert's demise.

No one we have talked to in the area appeared to be comfortable with Gilbert tracking across the Gulf of Mexico.

One of the things we have noticed washed up on our beach by Hurricane Florence last weekend, even though we received very little from the storm, was a lot of foam and plastic items in the piles of marsh grass along our shorelines.

Much of this debris comes from those using the Gulf, oceans and waterways, commercial and recreational.

One Saturday, September 24 there will be a Mississippi Coastal Cleanup with a slogan of "Lend a Hand in the Sand" and we hope there will be a big participation from Hancock Countians.

The event is being planned and coordinated by the Mississippi Marine Trash Task Force in connection with many interested agencies including the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

Registrations will begin at 8:30 a.m. in Bay St. Louis and Waveland along with other areas of the county, with the cleanup being from 9 a.m. until noon.

At about 12:15 p.m. or so, there will be hot dogs and cokes for those who participate at the entrance to the Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier, Waveland.

We will be giving you more information in Thursday's edition.

The help of everyone is needed to make this cleanup a success.

Participants are requested to bring gloves and wear boots. Collection bags will be provided.

If you need further information call the Chamber of Commerce at 467-9048 or me at 467-5474.

Next Saturday will be the Sixth Annual Arts & Crafts Show at Diamondhead from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. There will over 150 booths, more than ever before.

There will also be food and beverages available, and this could be a good time for many of you to purchase some gifts for those special occasions.

Proceeds go towards Diamondhead Academy for items such as building improvements, audio visuals, library expansion, computer software and other needed items.

This is a very fine Arts & Crafts Show, and we hope many folks will attend this big event at Diamondhead.

Bicentennial Commission proposes voluntary oath

For an alien to become a new American citizen, he or she must take an oath of allegiance, not to the flag nor the government nor the president, but to the Constitution of the United States. Similar oaths are taken when a person joins the military service or enters public office. The Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, chaired by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger (1969-1986), has developed a voluntary oath so that all Americans might have the same opportunity to support the Constitution.

The commission is asking all Americans to use Constitution Week, Sept. 17-23, as an opportunity to take this oath, and to become better informed about the Constitution itself.

The oath reads as follows: "I do solemnly swear (affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies foreign and domestic; and that I will well and faithfully discharge my duties and responsibilities as a citizen of the United States."

"The Constitution," said Chairman Burger, "made a true United States. The Constitution is what we did with that independence. We hope schools, community organizations and others will develop ways to implement this program."

It is the goal of the Bicentennial Commission that Constitution Week, and the Citizens Oath, will become an annual American observance.

GOODNESS GRASSES—Not about to let their day at the beach be ruined by a little flotsom washed ashore in the wake of Hurricane Florence last week, David Harrison, 15 months, equipped with floaties, crawls over the marsh-grass along Bay St. Louis' beach while Slade Maurer attempts to clear a path to the water. David's mother, Karen, of Slidell said she promised the boys a day at the beach and wasn't about to let them down. The debris remained on the beach through the week while Hancock County waited to see what Hurricane Gilbert would do. "Lend a Hand in the Sand" beach cleanup day, intended to remove man-made debris from mainland and island beaches coast-wide has been scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 24 from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. For more information, in Hancock County contact Ellis Cuevas at 467-5474 or the Chamber of Commerce at 467-9048, and in Harrison County call Jim Franks at 864-4602. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Election commissioners usurp authority

To the Editor,

I am appalled at the recent decision of the Hancock County Election Commissioners regarding the right of Executive Committee members to run for office.

In depriving Hilda Bourg, who was a member of the Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee, of the right to run for office, I feel they are committing a grave injustice.

Here is a group of five people, untrained in law, who take a law designed for election commissioners and apply it to the executive committee members. If the county were involved in a primary election where executive committee members have an active part, I could more readily understand. Even though Mrs. Bourg has resigned from her position she is still prevented from running.

I am a member of the Hancock County Republican Executive Committee and, believe me, it is a thankless job. People do it out of a sense of patriotic duty—to support and encourage qualified people of integrity to run for office.

Parts of the job is assisting in party primaries. We are elected by a handful of people not in a general election as are election commissioners.

I have no interest in running for office, but I feel my rights are being violated by the Hancock County Election Commissioners. As one of them told me when I questioned this decision—I would not be able to seek an elected position for the next four years (my term on the Executive Committee)—even if I resigned!

Awk! And I thought we were living in a democracy!

Sincerely,
Mary E. McDonnell

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

MEC to sponsor bankruptcy seminar

Whether it be a customer, tenant, supplier, or borrower, businesses in this state are almost guaranteed to feel the impact of a bankruptcy filing.

Since Congress passed the Bankruptcy Code, made the federal bankruptcy laws substantially more liberal, thus causing the trend in increased filings.

Presently, Chapter 11 filings, mostly for business debtors attempting to reorganize, exceed 20,000 per year. This represents five times the number reported in 1980.

The Administration Office of United States Courts predicts that bankruptcy filings overall will double in the next three years.

In the Jackson Division of the United States Bankruptcy Court, filings stand at 1,025 for the first three months of 1988, which is a 38.33 percent increase over the first three months of 1987.

In order to prepare businesses to better deal with this growing problem, the Mississippi Economic Council is sponsoring a seminar to provide an overview of strategies most commonly available to creditors in reorganization cases.

Conducting the seminar is Neil P. Olack, a Jackson attorney in charge of his firm's creditor-oriented bankruptcy practice and a nationally recognized bankruptcy attorney.

The seminar will be presented Oct. 10 at the Holiday Inn Downtown, Jackson. The first session will begin at 9 a.m.

Business owners and managers interested in attending the seminar should contact the MEC office, Box 23276, Jackson, MS 39225-3276.

The President's Column

Education imperative for prosperous nation

It is September, a time when our children once again return to school, bright with promise and eager for instruction. I am happy to report that if the record of the past eight years is any indication, the prospects for their education are brighter than they have been for more than two decades.

Test scores are up, reversing a calamitous drop in scores over the years between 1963 and 1980. Attendance is up, and the number of kids who drop out of high school is down.

The recovery of our schools has been a genuine grass-roots accomplishment, and it proves the solution to problems is not to throw money at them, but to come up with common sense answers and start applying them. I am proud that during our administration George Bush and I have been there with a sympathetic ear and a helping hand. But we have only just begun.

Far too many American students are graduating from school without the skills they will need to prosper and the knowledge they will need to grow as adults. And no one knows this better than America's parents who rose up at the beginning of the decade and said, "Our children are not getting the education they want, need and deserve."

The education our children want is the ability to discover the answers to the basic questions we all have: Who am I? Where do I live? and What is the world around me like? Children yearn to learn, and their capacity for it is one of the God-given wonders.

The education our children need is the ability to read, write and reason as well as any student in any country in the world. They need it, and the nation needs it as well if we are to prosper and grow.

I believe that the education of all Americans must be rooted in the self-evident truths of Western civilization. These are the truths that have been passed down like precious heirlooms from generation to generation since the generations began.

Since the founding of this nation, education and democracy have gone hand-in-hand. Thomas Jefferson not only wrote the Declaration of Independence and served as our third President, but also founded one of our most distinguished institutions of higher learning, the University of Virginia.

Jefferson and the Founders believed a nation that governs itself, like ours, must rely upon an informed and engaged electorate. Their purpose was not only to teach all Americans how to read and write, but to instill the self-evident truths that are the anchors of our political system. Truths, to quote Jefferson, such as "all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

This is our precious heritage. And our political freedoms—the freedom to speak, to practice our religions, to assemble peacefully—are the product of ideas that were born and nurtured in the great tradition of Western civilization.

That tradition does not say "some men" have these rights; it says "all men," everywhere on this Earth. Whether of Asian, Hispanic or African descent, no matter what color, every American is the interior of our great cultural tradition.

That is why I have supported and continue to support all efforts to teach our children about our culture, to read great texts and learn their lessons. Bill Bennett, our secretary of education, recently reported on the state of elementary education in our country. That report, entitled "James Madison Elementary School," presents an outline for what every elementary school curriculum should include. It is suffused with the glory of Western civilization, and I salute it.

We owe our children no less than to instruct them in what Matthew Arnold called "the best that has been known and said." And yet, just as forcefully I want to say that this curriculum is only a guideline for school districts to follow if they think is right. The final arbiter of what a child should learn is not the state, but the family and the community in which the child lives.

I support the right of all parents to choose the education they believe is best for their children in the form of magnet schools and state programs like Minnesota's, which permits parents to choose which schools their children can attend. In addition, programs like Youth 2000, which teaches kids to rely on themselves and to say no to drugs, are vital in our efforts.

Yes, we are blessed to be the recipients of this cultural bounty. And we must be responsible to, as the Constitution says, "secure the Blessing...to...our Posterity."

USM polymer science facility attests to state's leadership

Senator Thad Cochran says a new polymer science research facility going up in Hattiesburg is "evidence of Mississippi's leadership in research and technology for the future."

He said the new research facility at the University of Southern Mississippi will "provide important benefits for the nation's economy and defense, and help lessen our dependence on foreign sources of oil and petrochemical products."

Senator Cochran's remarks came as he joined USM officials at ground-breaking ceremonies for the new polymer science research facility at the university.

As chairman of the Senate Appropriations Panel on Agriculture and Rural Development, Cochran was instrumental in 1986 in securing the first $500,000 in federal funds for the USM facility.

Since then, he has worked with the Mississippi delegation and USM officials to secure additional federal funding to help complete the facility.

He noted that in passing the 1984 Critical Agricultural Materials Act, Congress determined it was in the nation's interest to reduce its dependence on foreign sources of petroleum, and to utilize alternate raw materials for chemical feedstocks.

The USM program is one of only seven such academic departments in the United States devoted to polymer science.

"Mississippians can be proud that we are providing, through the efforts of one of our fine universities, national leadership in this critical area of technology and research," the Senator commented.

He praised USM and state officials who earlier had the foresight to embark on "this major research and technology effort which will help develop new uses for Mississippi agricultural and forestry products."

Gorman seeks District 3 county supervisor position

Florence Gorman of Diamondhead has announced her candidacy for District 3 supervisor, Hancock County. She is a former educator, insurance underwriter, political campaign writer and executive secretary.

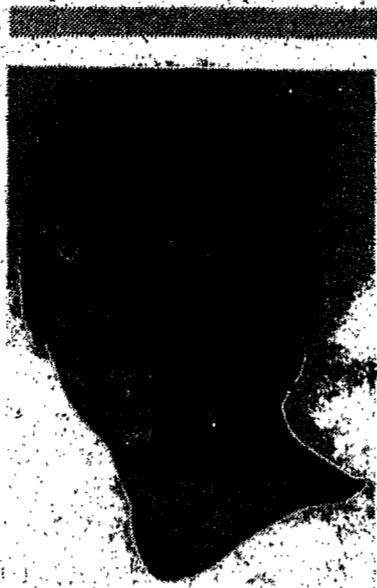

Married to Robert E. Gorman, a retired telephone executive, the Gormans are the parents of four grown children and grandparents of three boys. Their daughters, Sharon (Mrs. Thomas) Koger and Jeanne Marie Gorman, reside in Bay St. Louis.

Mrs. Gorman, 53, is a graduate of the College of New Rochelle with a master of science degree in education. She also holds a bachelor of arts degree in Spanish. A certified reading specialist, she is an active volunteer in the Hancock County Adult Literacy program.

In a statement announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Gorman said, "Slogans and empty promises do not solve problems. The time has come to put an end to the business as usual politics of the past. If Mississippi and Hancock County are to move ahead and 'never be last again' greed, corruption and political opportunism must be wiped out. We must have leadership whose integrity cannot be compromised. We must have competent leaders who can understand and evaluate the complex business of county government."

Mrs. Gorman closed her announcement by urging District 3 voters to "speak out at the ballot box" and promised that "with intelligence, initiative and integrity, I will make certain that the hard-earned tax dollars of the voters are returned by way of better government, better county services, and better and safer roads."

FLORENCE GORMAN

Mail-in registration encouraged by Molpus

Secretary of State Dick Molpus announced to the Circuit Clerks Association that Mississippi must "seize the initiative" in voter registration and elections. He strongly advocated that Mississippi adopt mail-in registration.

The Circuit Clerks are holding their annual convention in Columbus and election issues were the subject of a day-long program. Appearing before the clerks were Senator Hainon Miller, chairman of the Senate Elections Committee; Representative Frances Savage, chairman of Apportionment and Elections in the House of Representatives; Ms. Sandra Coleman, attorney with the Voting Rights Section of the United States Justice Department; and Peyton D. Prosperé, Assistant Secretary of State.

Molpus acknowledged the crucial support of the Circuit Clerks in the preparation of the Election Code of 1986, which was the result of the Election Law Reform Task Force established by Molpus.

"Constructive reform is impossible without the clerks' participation," stated Molpus, "unless that reform is imposed by the courts."

Molpus discussed the need for additional consideration of the state's voter registration laws. A strong proponent of mail-in registration, Molpus believes that the mail-in system provides the registrant accessibility while limiting the administrative burdens on the clerks.

"Tennessee, South Carolina, Kentucky and Texas are states in this region that presently use mail-in registration, and it works well for them," stated Molpus.

The benefits of mail-in registration include easy access to applications at such locations as banks, schools, and post offices; convenience in transferring registration; the lack of need for deputy registrars; and control by the clerks of registration rolls from the county office. A mail-in system requires the completion of a full application which is then forwarded to the clerk for review and approval. Twenty-four states currently have mail-in registration.

Other topics discussed included a package of improvements to the 1986 Election Code in the areas of challenged ballots, absentee ballots, and clarification of election day procedures. Consideration of a statewide computer registry of voters is also under review. Molpus stated that he anticipated that his office would work with the clerks and an interim legislative committee this fall on several proposals.

"Like you I'm tired of fighting the battles of yesteryear in the federal courts," stated Molpus. "It is costing us thousands and thousands of dollars in legal fees. We need to move on and see that every Mississippian is afforded the opportunity to vote. It's called democracy and it works."

Hawks still undefeated, down Poplarville 27-0

Hancock North Central took a 27-0 road victory over Poplarville Friday in the only local game not rescheduled due to the possibility Hurricane Gilbert might affect the Coast.

Quarterback Jeff Moran opened scoring with a one-yard run in the first quarter. Guy Graham added a PAT kick for a seven-point lead for the Hawks.

Moran passed to Graham for an 18-yard touchdown play to give Hancock a 13-0 lead at halftime.

Halfback Terrence Goff was credited with both the team's second-half touchdowns, with a four-yard run in the third quarter and a nine-yard run in the fourth.

Moran added a two-point conversion to post a final score of 27-0.

Hancock was able to limit Poplarville to 91 yards in total offense.

The undefeated Hawks will host Pass Christian Friday at 7:30 p.m.

TIMBERLINE

By Mark Jamieson
County Forester

Thinking of planting trees this winter? Is so, you'd better go ahead and order your seedlings now, while the supply lasts. We always encourage landowners to order seedlings early in the year. The seedling sale started in July. With so many folks reforesting their land nowadays, seedling supplies tend to run short. Although the Mississippi Forestry Commission can grow well over 76 million seedlings this year, we still have a tough time keeping up with the public's demand for pine and hardwood seedlings.

Here in Hancock County, over 1,200 acres of tree planting were accomplished last winter. There will be a lot of tree planting going on this winter, too. That is, if the seedlings have been ordered! Our nurseries currently have cypress, sycamore, loblolly, slash and longleaf pine seedlings left for purchase on a first come, first served basis. For ordering information, call me at 467-4728 or come by my office located in Bay St. Louis. Don't wait, now. The quicker you order, the more likely you'll get the trees you need.

Education Department receives literacy grant

The State Department of Education has been awarded a grant of $374,809 to develop a model workplace literacy project for Mississippi. It is one of 34 grants the U.S. Department of Education has awarded from 450 applications nationally. The proposal will be handled through the SDE's Bureau of Vocational-Technical and Adult Education. It is designed to carry out a statewide technical assistance and demonstration project to increase the number of students enrolled in workplace literacy programs. The project will also increase the number of service providers/business partnerships, and increase the effectiveness of employment and training programs for participants by assuring that they include appropriate educational and supportive service components. The 'Literacy in the Workplace' model education project is designed to initiate five area education projects which consist of 10 separate partnerships; plan and conduct a statewide 'Literacy in the Workplace' conference; and train a minimum of 20 literacy auditors and conduct 40 literacy audits by the end of the project period. The SDE will assist local partnerships to provide educational services, will review and monitor programs, will provide technical assistance in program and curriculum development, and will report on the project results.

Schulz joins race for Beat 3 supervisor

Bay St. Louis businessman Kelvin Schulz has announced his candidacy for supervisor, beat four, in the Nov. 8 special election.

Schulz, a Real Estate broker who also operates Big E Grocery and Seafood, is a resident of 600 South Beach Boulevard, Bay St. Louis.

He and his wife, the former Emily Mollere, have three children, Alicia, seven; Alison, 4; and Buddy, 10 months. Emily Schulz is a Home Health nurse at South Mississippi Home Health Corporation.

Schulz, 36, is a graduate of J.F. Kennedy High School in New Orleans, studied industrial technology at University of Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette, and completed coursework in management and Real Estate at University of Southern Mississippi.

He participated in a number of real estate seminars and is a graduate of the Realtor Institute, having received his certified Real Estate broker designation. He has been nominated to "Who's Who in Real Estate and Finance."

He is a charter member and past president of Hancock County Exchange Club and serves as a steering committee member for the club's child abuse prevention center; a trustee (three years) with Pere Le Duc Council of Knights of Columbus; and a member of Wave-land Civic Association, National Board of Realtors Marketing Institute and West Gulf Coast Board of Realtors. He is a former member of Krewe of Triton.

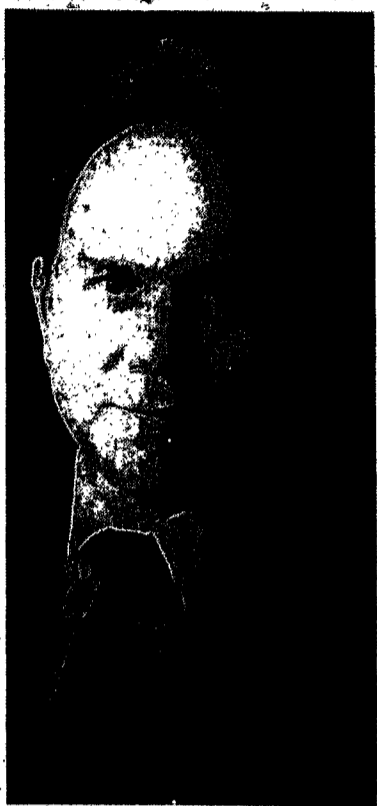

He is also a member of Fireman's Charitable Benevolent Association and St. Stanislaus Sidelane Club.

"I am committed to this candidacy simply because I think I can do the job and would like to do it," Schulz said. "I don't believe in drafting candidates. Someone who has to be goaded or cajoled into running, perhaps by special interests, simply doesn't bring to the office the enthusiasm and the confidence that any office requires if the people are to be well-served."

"I am a Hancock Countian and I am offering my own enthusiasm, my own confidence, and my own candidacy—obligated to no political faction—to the public of Hancock County."

Calling himself the "Work With You" candidate, Schulz outlined his goals for Hancock County, including utilization of the unit system to the taxpayers' best advantage, improved county employment and personnel programs, a full-time county fire department, a municipal services building, more sewerage and water service, a better landfill with recycling, improved conditions for law enforcement, four-laning both Highway 603 and Highway 43, more progressive schools, better beach and recreation areas and attracting more businesses and industries.

GOOD FOOD BUYS

Yogurt is bonus

Yogurt is the fastest growing fluid milk product in the nation. Once sought mainly by the health-minded food faddist, yogurt's special flavor has now become cultivated by the general public.

Yogurt comes in four basic styles: plain, flavored, sundae (fruit on the bottom) and swiss (fruit suspended throughout). There's also a western variation—sundae style with syrup on top.

Yogurt is usually sold in one-half pint (1 cup) containers in the grocery stores. When you bring it home, remember it's a fresh dairy product. Keep it cold and covered. Freezing is recommended. Yogurt should usually be eaten within three to four days after purchase. After this time, the acidity is likely to increase and may produce a sharper taste in the product.

Yogurt is a custard-like product made by fermenting milk with a special culture. It may be made from either homogenized, pasteurized, whole milk or skim or partly skimmed milk. Plain yogurt has the nutritive value of the milk from which it is made. Yogurt is also available sweetened and fruit-flavored which would add some to the calorie content and perhaps slightly change other nutrients depending on the composition of the fruit flavoring.

Yogurt is a bonus in nutrition since it is a concentrated milk. If made with skim milk it provides more calcium, phosphorus and water-soluble vitamins than a similar portion of whole milk and contains no more fat. All yogurt is an excellent source of calcium and riboflavin.

Gilbert changes pattern in local purchasing

By D. C. HARVILL
With memories of Hurricane Camille's devastation fast in their minds after 19 years, Hancock County residents wasted no time in taking every precaution against Hurricane Gilbert, the storm which, before battering the Texas-Mexico Coast Friday evening, had promised to surpass even Camille's fury.

"Everyone was thinking about Camille when they saw how big Gilbert was and they got scared. I know the hair just stood up on the back of my neck when I saw how powerful the storm was," Hancock County Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin said.

"Some people evacuated prematurely, but I would rather they leave early and be safe than wait until the last minute to try to get out," Boudin said.

Boudin added that he would like to thank everyone for pitching in to help prepare for Gilbert, especially those who cooperated by evacuating.

Hardware stores report having a brisk business Wednesday as those people who didn't bother to board-up their windows for Hurricane Florence last week took no such chances with Gilbert.

"The thing that impressed me was the amount of preparation that took place while the storm was still so far away. Nobody wanted to wait until the last minute like they had with Florence," said Jimmy McDonald of W.A. McDonald and Sons Hardware.

"Our business was very brisk, especially Wednesday, but is dead now. When they announced how big the storm was a lot of people were going to board up and leave," Richard Hubbard of Waveland Hardware said Friday afternoon.

"On one hand it helped our business and on the other it has hurt business; our plywood sales must have quadrupled Wednesday, but the rain now is killing business," said West Building Materials general manager Mark Stinson.

Mike Bettis, manager of K Mart said his business has remained constant, except the

"The County Election Commission members, elected by the voters of the county, perform the same services for general and special elections and purging the voter rolls. They are paid for their services by the county, and very well should be."

"It is my understanding that there are approximately 170 elected public officials in the State of Mississippi at this time who would not have been allowed to seek office if this law had been invoked previously, as it is being done now. My intention is not to find fault with individuals, but with one stupid law (among many) which should be revoked in the State of Mississippi."

"I encourage you, and other citizens to express indignation to the Legislature and Governor Mabus for this inequity which exists... At this time, due to circumstances outlined above, I tender my resignation from the Democratic Election Committee of Hancock County."

IN BRIEF
FISHERMAN'S COALITION
The Mississippi Saltwater Fisherman's Coalition will hold an open meeting 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 22 at the Westside Community Center, Highway 90, Gulfport.

Principal items scheduled for discussion include: recreational saltwater fishing license, recreational fishermen selling their catch, enforcement of regulations, purse seining of mullet, and better records of fish landed in Mississippi. All fishermen are invited to attend.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT RESCHEDULED
The Mississippi Tennis Association has rescheduled a Junior Tournament at Tennis World Diamondhead for September 24-25.

Boys and girls divisions from ages 10-18. The registration deadline has been extended to Tuesday 4:00 p.m.

For more information, contact Ed Little at 255-2625, extension 200, or 467-6686.

Items people have been spending money this week has changed.

"We had a rush for Florence that emptied our shelves, we got more stock in and then had a rush for Gilbert. People were stocking up on lamps, batteries, cook stoves and countless other items they might need," Bettis said.

While Gilbert took its promise of destruction to the Rio Grande Valley area of south Texas and northern Mexico, Hancock County didn't go without experiencing effects of the storm.

Our road in was impassable for a couple of days," Marie Hall of LaFrance's Fishing Camp in Ansley said. "Most of our campers moved their campers out and haven't returned yet. We moved most of our stuff to higher ground, but no one's house got water that I know of."

Hall expected more high water Friday night and Saturday.

Fall weatherizing saves winter costs

By Linda S. Moore
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Lower winter utility bills could be the payback to homeowners using basic weatherizing procedures on houses this fall.

Dr. Carol Short, energy program specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said two primary ways to save on heating costs is by caulking and weatherstripping doors. These methods also will reduce cooling bills in the summer.

"Normally, the payback for weatherstripping and caulking results within one year," Short said. "The expense involved will be determined by the quality and longevity of the material used. The buyer should decide which factors are most important for their personal needs."

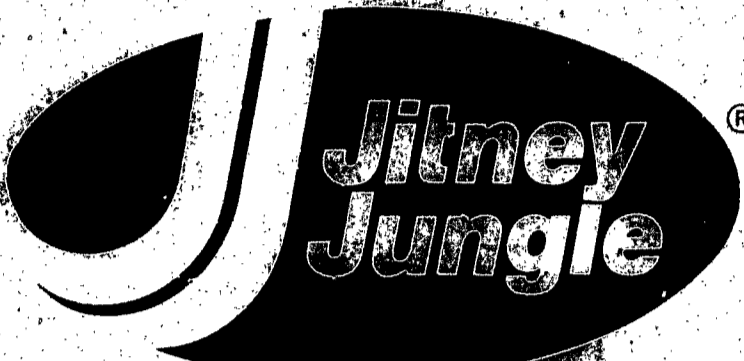

Longer-lasting caulking materials such as silicone (20 years) and butyl rubber (7 to 10 years) cost more than acrylic latex (5 to 7 years) or the lowest costing oil-base (1 to 2 years).

Short said weatherstripping is primarily used around doors. Materials are available from the lowest cost foam or felt strips to the higher costing interlocking strips or door shoes and thresholds.

The energy specialist said door sweeps attaching to the bottoms of doors are another alternative. She said sweeps are especially good in homes

Future of hunting and fishing industries depend on wildlife management planning

By Eva Ann Dorris
Hunting and fishing is a major industry in Mississippi—major enough to generate $733 million into the state economy. Sportsmen, wildlife agency officials and landowners agree that it's an industry that needs to stay in business.

As the demand for hunting and fishing land increases, those who depend on and enjoy the industry are concerned about its future.

"We are going to have to be as creative as possible in the upcoming years if we are going to pursue the hunting opportunities available to us at the end of the century," said Vernon Bevill, executive director of the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Bevill was one of four men who addressed the topic "Where Will We Hunt in 1995" during a panel discussion held at the recent Wildlife Extravaganza in Jackson. The annual event, sponsored by the Mississippi Wildlife Federation, attracted more than 17,000 people to the combination trade show, educational event and public forum.

Bevill said the MDWC is one of a handful of state agencies throughout the nation developing a comprehensive wildlife management planning process to insure adequate hunting and fishing opportunities for future generations.

According to the director, 37 percent of the adult residents in the state annually purchase some type of hunting or fishing license from his department.

Bud Braddock, forest supervisor for the National Forest System in Mississippi said in the next decade there will be more hunting pressure, but there may not be more public land to accommodate the pressure.

"With each session we are finding more hunters using national forests," he said. "Unless you belong to be hunting club or own land, national forests are the only places to hunt."

Braddock said the challenge will be to provide for more use on the same amount of land.

"I think the regulations will become more restrictive in an attempt to divide the land equitably between users with different objectives," Braddock said. "I expect to see larger still hunt areas, more walk-in hunting areas and more land designated as wildlife management areas."

Braddock added that another possibility is the addition of an annual user fee for hunting on national forest land. Other southern states already charge fees in rates ranging from $2 to $30.

"The benefit of such a fee is that the money is shared between the state and the forest service and is used for habitat improvement and law enforcement."

"The purpose of these changes is not to take the resource away from the user, but to provide use and at the same time protect the resource for future generations."

Charlie Hagen, land and timber manager for Weyerhaeuser is responsible for working with hunting clubs on Weyerhaeuser property. Their policy is to offer permits to hunting clubs at rates competitive with other large landowners. The range is from 70 cents to $3 an acre.

"Today, we have 428 hunting club permits on 398,000 acres of land in central Mississippi and west central Alabama. Our unpermitted land is open to public hunting," he said. "In 1974, Weyerhaeuser had 125 clubs permitting 175,000 acres of land."

Hagen said as demand increases permitting will continue to grow throughout Mississippi and the Southeast.

Wiley Pruitt, a private landowner from Montgomery County, said sportsmen are creating problems for themselves that will make it even more difficult to lease private land in the future.

The panel agreed that as places to hunt become scarce, conflicts among hunters and between hunters and landowners will increase. The most common conflicts are over trespassing, road hunting and different types of hunting such as still hunting and hunting with dogs.

"We are losing private land as a hunting resource because of a small group of hunters," Pruitt said. "Permitting to hunt on private land is a privilege, not a right."

Bevill said the MDWC is trying to build a program built on cooperation between all agencies and sportsmen.

"I'm looking for people who realize that the only way that tomorrow will be better than today is if we all find some middle ground to stand on together," he said.

"We have got to change behavior and if we can change enough people forever, for the better by 1995, the opportunities we have today will be as abundant in 1995 as they are right now."

Healthy selections at grocery score high marks with AHA

There are no chalkboards in the frozen foods section of the supermarket. Reference books are scarce in the dairy case. And, no 'pop quizzes' lurk behind the canned goods. But, the supermarket is an excellent classroom in which to teach heart health. And, you, mom or dad, can be the teacher.

Because most moms and dads work, the weekly grocery shopping is likely to be done after work and school hours or on weekends. Often, children tag along on these shopping trips.

"Good eating habits begin with the selection of the kinds of foods," Martha Snively, RD, LD of the American Heart Association, Mississippi Affiliate nutrition committee says. "You can begin to teach your children to make good choices early."

Studies show that American children—like American adults—tend to eat more foods containing fat and cholesterol than they should. Higher levels of cholesterol, a fatty substance that becomes deposited in the arteries of the body, greatly increases a person's risk of heart attack. According to the AHA, most foods we eat can be part of a healthy diet, if selected and prepared properly.

"Children can learn to prefer healthful, low-fat foods over those high in fat and cholesterol that may lead to later problems with blood cholesterol levels," said Snively.

"More importantly, children need to learn how to balance the intake of all types of foods in their diet. Habits formed early in a child's life will have a tendency to last a lifetime," Snively added.

Selection of the healthiest frozen, canned, or packaged foods is academic, once you and your child learn a few facts about labels and looks.

Take fat, for example. The AHA recommends no more than 30 percent of our diet be composed of fat. Translated into individual servings, this means that when you look at frozen or packaged food, you should read the label and select those lowest in fat and calories.

But, suppose you're not into 'higher math.' There are some 'rule of shelf' tips which can help you and your child pass the supermarket nutrition course. Look for items which are low-fat, low-cholesterol and low in sodium. Prepare them at home without adding fat or salt, carrying the supermarket education into the kitchen at home.

At the meat counter, look for meats that are lean, without much 'marbling' or visible fatty streaks. At home, trim off the visible fat and encourage your family to eat no more than six ounces of fish, poultry or lean meat a day. Include a variety of these items in your diet and substitute beans as a source of protein.

In canned goods, compare labels. Your child can do this. Choose products with the lowest amounts of fat, sodium and cholesterol.

The dairy case offers clearer lessons. Most products identify themselves when they are 'low-fat,' 'non-fat' or 'skimmed.'

The right choices at the grocery store add up to good grades for you and your child. Choosing heart-healthy foods will help you pass the course.

where elderly are present and tripping over thresholds is a concern. Although they tend to wear out quicker, floor sweeps can also supplement existing wooden thresholds.

Other weatherizing practices Short suggests include placing a heavy grade plastic over windows as temporary storm windows. Short said plastic, which is ideal if more costly permanent storm windows are not an option, will work just as well as permanent storm windows.

She said special purchased covers or homemade covers over wall unit air conditioners will prevent incoming drafts.

Special efforts to decrease outside air from filtering in through holes such as water pipes, vents and outlets also should be made. Insulators for outlets are available on the market and foam insulation can be stuffed around pipes and vents to reduce unwanted air flow.

The specialist cautioned against covering vents to decrease drafts. She said vents are important for ventilation, both for the house and the occupants.

Short said weatherizing efforts must be combined with careful thermostat control for homeowners to notice a reduction in the energy costs.

During the winter, a setting of 68 degrees F is recommended or 70 degrees F when elderly people are present. At night, thermostats can be turned down a couple of degrees for additional savings, she said.

St. Vincent de Paul Society: A labor of love

JOHN DASPIT

BY JANET MCQUEEN
Workers with the St. Vincent de Paul Society receive no monetary reward—but one far greater, according to local members.

The satisfaction of knowing you have provided food for a hungry family, clothing for the children or heat for the home is infinitely more gratifying than a check of any amount.

St. Clare Catholic Church

nization is composed of Catholic volunteers who donate hundreds of hours' counseling and financial assistance for those in urgent need.

Our Lady of the Gulf society president Earl Salaun reports that persons are referred for help by the welfare department, Community Action agency and word of mouth.

"Many Catholics grew up with the tradition of the socie-

James 2: 16-17

"And one of you say unto them, 'Depart in peace and be ye warmed and filled'; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body: What does it profit?"

Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone" began their society conference approximately four years ago, and helped Our Lady of the Gulf parish establish one. The orgaty," said the Reverend Pete Mockler, spiritual advisor, "But all persons are helped, regardless of religious preference."

HELPING OTHERS

History of St. Vincent de Paul Society

The beginning of the St. Vincent de Paul Society dates back to 1833 in France, when a young lay student at the Sorbonne participated in a Catholic discussion club.

Federic Ozanam, joined by professor Monsierr Bailly de Lury, repeatedly defended Catholicism and the church's role in society before a host of skeptics.

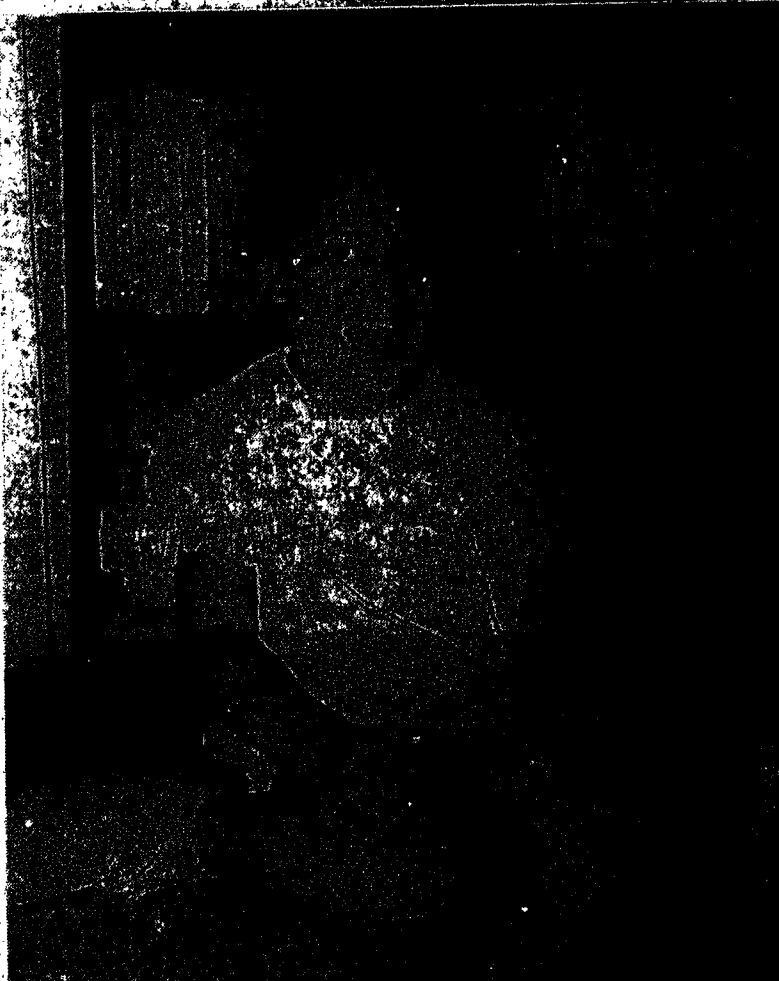

Ozanam had vowed to dedicate his talents and energies to defending his faith and was caught off-guard when an adversary questioned "What do you do besides talk to prove the faith you claim is in you?"

Searching the gospel for guidance, Ozanam decided to emulate the words of Jesus Christ by assisting the poor.

Stricken students joined him, Bailly and St. Charles de Foucauld, around the Corporation of St. Vincent de Paul. The group visited them, providing them with food and advice.

Within three years from St. Vincent de Paul, the French Republic's generosity, the small group had inspired others to take on the challenge of helping those less fortunate.

At his death in 1851, the society numbered 15,000. Today, Vincentians number more than 700,000 in every corner of the globe.

SMART SHOPPER—Browsing through the huge array of children's books at the St. Vincent de Paul Thrift Shop, Ashley Poillion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Poillion of Waveland.

Some of the tasks performed by the group include visits with inmates in the Hancock County Jail; visits to the elderly and sick who are housebound; hospital and nursing home visits; travel aid; spiritual counseling; distribution of religious reading material; and countless referrals to other agencies, including Catholic Social Services.

St. Clare president John Daspit cites lack of education as a prime contributor to many a desperate situation. "We helped a family once in which no one in three generations had progressed past the third grade," he commented. "I cannot approximate how many people we have referred to seek education."

Jobs are scarce for those who are illiterate or marginally literate, and lack of income provides the bulk of problems dealt with by the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Daspit notes that one out of three persons seeking help is "an abandoned wife with children" with little or no work experience. Many do not have adequate food supplies, and an emergency food pantry is kept in event of this.

A Thrift Shop is staffed by volunteers led by Marie Braselman of Waveland. Operating out of the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue, the make-shift store features a huge array of donated clothing in a range of sizes at nominal prices. Household items, plants and furniture are also available in a different selection weekly. Sales proceeds benefit the society, so that the person purchasing a bargain is also contributing to a worthy cause.

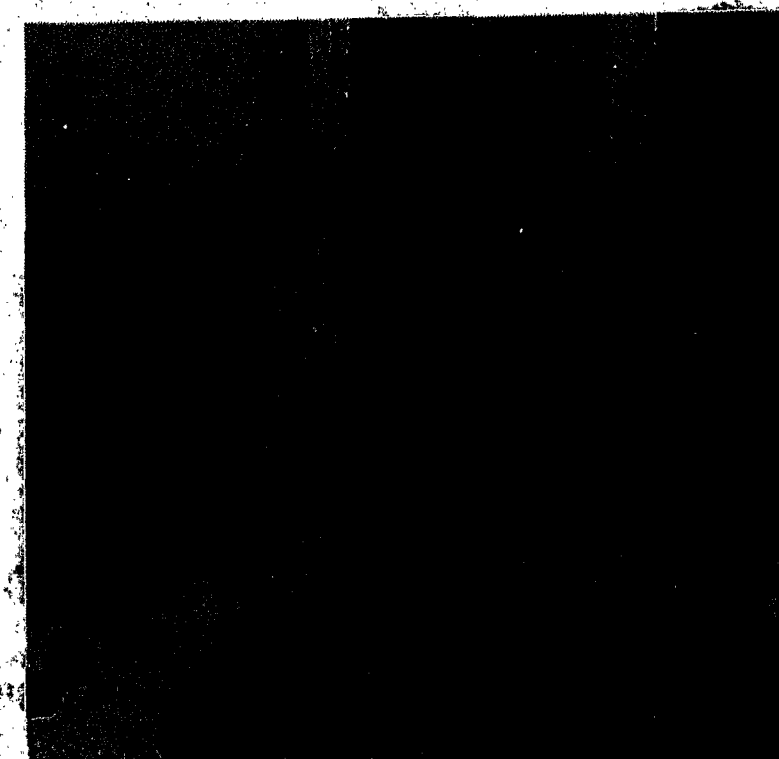

Requests for financial assistance are ever-present and are dealt with on an individual basis. The person is interviewed and his case is presented before an advisory board of society members. An ineligible list of "repeat offenders" or persons who refuse to help themselves does exist.

Requests are cross-checked with other agencies and sometimes other churches to eliminate duplication of services. Salaun emphasizes that they "do not give cash," but supply purchase orders or checks designated to the utility department or power company. Requests for non-perishable food are often filled at the Food Pantry in the old Hancock THRIFTY BUDS—The St. Vincent de Paul Thrift Shop, located in the Waveland Civic Center, is simply stocked with clothing, household items, plants and furniture. Opened by volunteers on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., proceeds benefit the society.

County Jail, which is also staffed by volunteers and supported by area churches.

The operating budget of the society is not supported directly by either St. Clare or OLC, but by individual donations. A "Poor Box" is stationed in the church, and occasionally a special collection is designated for the society.

Our Lady of the Gulf distributed empty grocery sacks last year with attached list of suggested items for Thanksgiving delivery. Parishioners returned 280 filled bags, providing baskets for 72 families. This will be repeated this year.

Most of the society volunteers are tireless workers, and are often involved in other community services. Salaun and Daspit are both retired, and find themselves busier than when they were employed. Many workers have reared several children and are grateful for the blessing which they have enjoyed. Volunteer service is a way of expressing their gratitude.

St. Vincent officers, active members named

The St. Vincent de Paul Society officers at Our Lady of the Gulf in addition to president Earl Salaun are vice-president, H. L. (Robbie) Robinson; treasurer, Oliver Meyer; secretary, Wilma McMahon; and members Mae Salaun, Ina Piazza, Henry Lang, Jim McCarthy and Anita Lamb.

St. Clare officers are president John Daspit; vice-president, Jay Fleuriot; treasurer Rosary Hartel and Marion Quinlan. Other members include Mary Blanchard, Louise Gibbens, Steve Hartel, Larry Hanrahan, Marie Braselman, Bob Sbis and Carlotta Bergeron. Spiritual advisor is the Reverend Noel Fannon.

Both conferences have associate members and new members are welcome. The Thrift Shop operated by the Waveland group needs 12 volunteers each week to work morning or afternoon shifts. For information, phone 467-0703.

'Eat healthy' message encouraged by AHA

Eating at the 'company store,' whether it be at school, work or in a public cafeteria, can be a heart-healthy experience, according to Helen Brumbach, RD of the American Heart Association, Mississippi Affiliate nutrition committee.

"Just as loggers and miners were once 'captive' to the offerings at their company store, there was a time when diners saw little variety in the cafeteria lines," said Grumbach.

Increasing emphasis on nutrition and heart health has encouraged cafeteria managers to cater to the need for a wide variety of healthy foods. Given more options, it is now up to the consumer to make the right choices.

Select foods prepared with little or no fat and with no added salt.

When choosing from the salad bar, avoid items with excess mayonnaise (high in fat) and go easy on the salad dressing. Look for water-packed tuna or chicken.

Add fish to your diet. Choose baked, steamed or broiled fish, rather than fried. Careful about adding tartar sauce or catsup—they may be high in fat and/or sodium.

Be conscious of products made with egg yolks. Egg yolks are high in cholesterol, but the white is all right. The AHA recommends no more than three egg yolks per week, but by using a variety of recipes, cholesterol-free egg substitutes or egg white substitutions, cutting back on egg yolks will become one of the easiest adjustments to make.

Remember that pasta, rice, breads and cereal are low in fat and high in nutrients.

Substitute skim milk, low-fat cheeses and low-fat and non-fat yogurt for their high-fat counterparts.

Eat a meatless meal at least once a week. Try beans, salads and low-salt soups.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

Thursday, Sept. 8, the regular monthly sing-a-long was sponsored by the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 at the Hotel Reed Nursing and Retirement Home.

Mrs. Lena Mae Oustalet played the piano and Mmes. Roslyn Weathers and Oris Planchard went among the residents to encourage them to join in the singing. The new director of activities, Mrs. Beth, was impressed by the number of residents who participated. A good time was enjoyed by all.

Louisville, Ky. was the site of the annual convention attended by American Legion Auxiliary and the members of the Clement R. Bontemps Auxiliary Unit 139. Those attending were Mmes. Phyllis Moran, Connie Hickman, Patsy Oliver, Rose Ann Thompson, Anna Brehm, Evelyn Sick, Lou Wilkerson, Evelyn Burns and Amy Oliver, auxiliary junior member.

There were many activities going on. In each of them, at least one of our members was present. They also participated in the parade prior to the opening of the convention. Many of the members attended the Lee Greenwood concert.

Unit 139 served Southern-style cooking in the hospitality room which was a great success. The Alabama-Mississippi delegates held an open house party for members of the national auxiliary and a good time was enjoyed by all.

A membership rally in Jackson was held Aug. 27. Members who attended were Janet Aime, president of Unit 139; Lou Wilkerson, state chaplain; Evelyn Burns and Thelma Elliot. It was a most informative rally and everyone who attended learned something of the workings of the state auxiliary.

WAVELAND

Tops No. 233 Waveland met Sept. 13. Top loser of the week was Cecile Ladner. Meetings are held each Tuesday at the Waveland Library on Coleman Avenue at 6:45 p.m. Weigh-ins begin at 6 p.m. until meeting begins.

For more information contact Betty at 467-1372 or Sandra at 467-9271.

While we're all working towards a slimmer and healthier figure, wear clothes which flatter you. Never wear two-color two-piece suits or dresses. Always wear a one-color garment even though it is made of two pieces. This look will make you appear slimmer.

PASS CHRISTIAN

Tops 213 Pass Christian met Sept. 13. Top loser for the week was Trish Prendergast.

Doris Fontaine earned a special charm for staying at or below goal for 48 weeks. Prendergast earned a charm for losing 40 pounds. Mary Alice Ladner earned a charm for losing 10 pounds. James Wilson earned a charm for achieving one-half to goal status.

The club's open house planned for Sept. 20 has been postponed. The club invites anyone interested in weight control to visit.

The meeting is held every Tuesday at the Pass Christian Library on Hiern Avenue between 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. Weigh-ins are between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. For information, call Gayle Arnold at 467-7198 or Jeannie Livings at 452-9706.

Toastmasters International

The Toastmasters International 1988 District 29 Fall Conference will be held in Pascagoula at the La Font Inn, during the weekend of Oct. 28, 29 and 30. Clubs from areas in Mississippi, Alabama and Florida will be participating in this event.

The conference will feature veteran Toastmasters Club members participating in tall tales, humorous speech, and impromptu speech contests.

For further information about the fall conference and local Toastmaster clubs in your area, contact William Esterly at 875-3266, residence; 374-1143, office; or Mike Rapport at 497-2746.

Maggio-Freemyer

United Methodist Church in Helena, Ark. was the setting for the August 6 marriage of Emily Ann Freemyer of Helena and Michael Anthony Maggio of Bay St. Louis.

The Reverend Frank Clemmons and Deacon William Swift officiated at the double ring candlelight evening ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Neal Freemyer of Helena. The groom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Henry Anthony Maggio of Bay St. Louis.

Decorating the altar were arrangements of white gladioli, roses, agapanthus, poms, and gypsophila, flanked by brass candelabra with white tapers. Adorning the sanctuary were Boston and sprengeri fern with two tree candelabra. Aisle candelabra and greenery marked the pews.

Nuptial music was presented by Mark Clemmons, trumpet;

Mrs. Lillian Hatfield, organ; and Mrs. Edwin Calhoun, vocals.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of heavy candlelight slipper satin featuring a portrait neckline framed in imported French re-embroidered Alencon lace overlaid with venise lace motifs. The skirt was accented with Alencon lace appliques and swept to a graceful court train.

A fingertip veil of candlelight illusion was attached to a wreath of satin rosebuds, lace and clusters of mini-pearls.

She carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and phalaenopsis orchids with sprengeri greenery.

Mrs. Douglas Martin of Little Rock, Ark. attended her sister as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Valentin Ortiz of San Juan, Puerto Rico, sister of the bride; Mrs. Barry Bridgforth of Oxford and Shannon Maggio of Bay St. Louis, sister of the groom; Charlotte Raff, Andrea Akers and Mrs. Gerald Parker, all of Helena; Katherine Harvey of Birmingham, Ala.; Ardith Morrison of Memphis, Tenn. and Caroline Madden of Bay St. Louis.

The attendants were attired in gowns of pink and aqua/polished cotton fashioned with open portrait neckline and softly gathered skirts.

They carried arm bouquets of pink snaps, gerbera daisies, alstromeria and dendrobium orchids with sprengeri fern.

Miss Annalyn Back of Houston, Tex. was flower girl.

Dr. Henry Maggio served his son as best man.

Groomsmen were Stephen Maggio of Birmingham, brother of the groom; Barry Bridgforth of Oxford, brother-in-law of the groom; Kenneth Freemyer of Blytheville, Ark., brother of the bride; Douglas Martin of Little Rock, Ark., brother-in-law of the bride; John Randall Santa Cruz of Bay St. Louis; Patrick Wild of Pass Christian; Robert Hadden of New Orleans; John Puckett of Jackson and Peter Lewis of Waveland.

Mrs. Maggio chose for her son's wedding a two piece ensemble with white organza blouse with open neckline framed in wide double ruffles of organza and aqua tulle, a long more than a yard with double brocade train.

The bride's mother chose a tea-length gathered skirt featuring horizontal stripes and coordinating blouse featuring multiple bodices.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Helena Country Club.

Assisting at the reception were Susanne Hays, Angie Moore, Mrs. Stephen Maggio and Mrs. Kenneth Freemyer.

On the way from a Caribbean cruise, the couple resided in Conway, Ark.

The nuptial parties at the Helena home of Mr. and Mrs. John Moore. Other hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hare and Dr. and Mrs. B.C. Cremon.

A patio wine and cheese party was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Mike Black.

A hawaiian luau was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Todd in Pass Christian.

A bride shower was hosted by Mrs. Burton Griffin, Mrs. Jimmy Boyd, Mrs. Ed Alright and Mrs. Roy Butler.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the Maggio family in Helena.

Smith-Iida

Mr. and Mrs. Moriyuki Iida, Niihari, Ibaraki, Japan, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Yumiko Iida, of Bay St. Louis, to Elvin Jeffrey Smith, son of Ms. Carole Mitchell of Lakeshore, and E. O. Smith of Russellville, Ala.

The bride-elect received a bachelor of arts degree in English and American literature in 1986.

The prospective groom is a 1979 graduate of Bay Senior High School. He is employed with Rockeddyne at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

The wedding will be solemnized at the Lakeshore Baptist Church at 2 p.m. on Sunday, September 25 with reception following at the National Guard Armory in Waveland. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS

John McLaughlin will host a one-hour special exploring all aspects of the electoral process when "A McLaughlin Group Special: Is This Any Way to Elect a President?" airs at 9 p.m., Monday, Sept. 19, on Mississippi ETV.

From the earliest caucuses to the final electoral college vote, McLaughlin and his panel of experts will examine the effectiveness of the process used in America to fill the nation's top government position.

Lighthouse BPW to host Fifth Congressional debate

Larkin Smith and Gene Taylor, candidates for the Fifth District Congressional seat, have agreed to participate in a public forum sponsored by Lighthouse Business and Professional Women's Club in Biloxi. The forum will be held in the Coronet Room of the Broadwater Beach Hotel on Wednesday Sept. 28, 7 to 9 p.m. A cash bar reception will precede the question and answer session to provide the public with an opportunity to meet the candidates.

According to Grace Aaron, Legislative Chair of Lighthouse Business and Professional Women's Club, the forum is being sponsored to provide the public with an opportunity to ask specific questions about the candidates' stance on issues.

"Information presented through newspaper articles and television debates is useful in determining who to vote for in an election," stated Aaron, "but the amount of in-depth information provided by the media to date about Smith's and Taylor's positions on various issues has been limited."

of Lighthouse BPW—and I imagine other concerned citizens in the Fifth District—are interested in learning the candidates' positions on issues such as pay equity, day care, benefits for the dependent and elderly, and housing as well as the traditional topics which are addressed by candidates on the campaign trail: the federal budget deficit, defense spending, and foreign policy."

The public is encouraged to attend and to participate in the forum which will be moderated by Karen Abernathy, news anchor for WLOX-TV Channel 13.

Reflections

You can't buy a home

By Fr. Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"We just bought a house. No, we just bought a home!"

So runs the radio advertisement of a homestead company. Their intentions, of course, are good, but their insights are poor. Obviously, they intend to project buying the warmth of a home. Attractive though it is and no doubt conducive to sales, that idea is nothing else but so much wishful thinking.

You can buy a house all right, but you can only make a home. All you can buy is the physical structure of a house. That physical structure can be very solid, very elaborate, very imposing, and furnished with the most expensive and/or exotic appointments.

It is houses like that which often house the loneliest, the most selfish, the most directionless, the most frustrated, the most bitter and the unhappiest people in the world. Evidently, whatever they built or bought is not a home.

"Unless the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it." (Psalms 127:1)

That could not refer to a building, since many people succeed in constructing their house the way they want it built. The obvious reference is to a home, which is much more than a house and which cannot be built without generous help from God.

By the same token, you can buy or build a structure, but you can only make a church. Structures are purchased or built every day but churches seem to come into being rather infrequently.

Some buildings reputed to be churches are so large, so stately, so strongly set in bricks and mortar, so crystal in their abundance of glass, so sheathed in marble and so extravagant in their furnishings that they dazzle the senses.

Such magnificence can delude us into thinking that we can buy sacred atmosphere, devotion, and a spirit of faith and prayer.

Innumerable are the structures which parade under the name of churches, but which are little more than hotbeds of jealousy and envy, bastions of racism, cafeterias of self-serving intrigue, and facades for a way of life which belies the lip service to God.

Church, the assembly of the people, is something which only God, working through the people, can bring into being. It is only this church of which people can honestly say: "We had church today!" Even more, "We had good church today!"

To build or purchase shells or structures is a human enterprise which may or may not be prompted by faith, hope and love. The shell which some call a church is too often riddled with personal cliques, political factions and moneymaking schemes.

However, real church is a divine enterprise which rises above all human pettiness, above all controlling and power-grabbing selfishness, above all commercialism and greed. This cannot be built or bought, but only made through the love of the Spirit.

There is a similarity in marriage where you pay for the legalities, but you cannot buy a meaningful marriage. A lavish wedding ceremony and a storybook reception do nothing toward creating a marriage which is built on mutual faith, trust, sharing and love.

If the success of marriages could be gauged by the amount of expense which goes into the weddings, there would be a great majority of successful marriages. Clearly, they cannot be bought. Rather, marriages are made painstakingly and prayerfully.

You can buy or build any material thing which you will, but it will have no meaning until you put soul into it through your own faith, hope and love inspired by the Holy Spirit.

Strong families show love and appreciation

Definitions of the typical American family may be changing, but that doesn't mean the family unit is crumbling.

According to Norine Barnes, a child and family development specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, many people mistakenly feel that a traditional family is the only good family.

"In truth, the family with the father working and mother staying home to raise the children has only been traditional for the middle class," Barnes said. "It was never really true for all Americans."

As more women entered the work force and divorce rates increased, even many middle class families moved away from the typical or traditional family.

Today, the typical family may be one with a single parent, both parents working, or blended families with children from previous marriages.

"People are experiencing a major upheaval in the structure and functioning of the family," Barnes said. "Families are feeling changes in values, goals, economics and lifestyles."

"This doesn't mean the new, non-traditional families are going to change society as we know it," Barnes said. "As long as a small group of people unite to help each family member reach their full potential, the family will serve society in a positive way."

The key to maintaining strong families, regardless of the structure, is to encourage strong emotional ties, Barnes said.

Research shows that strong families have many common characteristics. Their members tell each other that they appreciate and love each other. They spend positive time together and communicate with understanding. They share the same spiritual values and make a commitment to promote each other's happiness.

"Families don't have to be typical to develop these characteristics," Barnes said. "They just have to have a unit that allows them to draw on each other's resources as they are needed."

Mississippi products appealing to Taiwan

Department stores in Taipei, Taiwan are looking to buy the state's agricultural products according to Roy Manning, international trade director with the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce.

"This is a new market for Mississippi Producers of agricultural products," said Manning.

The Taiwanese people are very interested in what we have to offer.

In July the marketing officer with the Taipei World Trade Center contacted Manning about the different Mississippi products available. Manning is coordinating the information to send to Taipei.

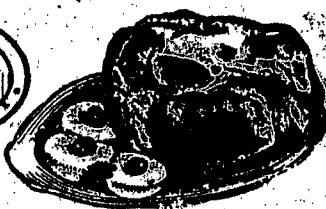

Mississippi producers who are interested in exporting should contact Manning at 1-961-4725, or write International Trade Division, Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, P.O. Box 1609, Jackson, MS 39215-1609.

Rigby-Ellis

Janet Claire Ellis and Gerald William Rigby Jr. exchanged wedding vows in an evening candlelight ceremony July 23 at

Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church. The Reverend Kenneth Ramon Landry officiated. The bride is a daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. Raymond J. Ellis of Bay St. Louis. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald William Rigby Sr. of Marietta, Ga.

Aisle candelabra were decorated with peach ribbon and sparkle baby's breath. Arrangements of peach and ivory flowers adorned the altar.

Nuptial music was presented by Tom Bourdin, organist, and Marsha Daniels.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of antique ivory silk organza over taffeta fashioned with sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves and basque waistline. Re-appliqued Alencon lace embellished with seed pearls enhanced the fitted bodice. The full gathered skirt was trimmed with schiffli lace edging and individual lace medallions and extended to cathedral train. A soft flounce of organza ruffles cascaded down from the dropped waist to the train, and was topped with a large bow.

She carried a cascade of ivory and peach sweetheart roses with baby's breath, pearls and peach and ivory ribbons.

Patricia Ann Ellis Cabaniss of Bay St. Louis attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Tammy Rene Ellis and Connie Lynn Ellis of Bay St. Louis, sisters of the bride.

Georgia Kidd of Roswell, Ga., cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The attendants were attired in tea length dresses of soft peach fashioned of chantilly lace and organza over taffeta. Each featured a sweetheart neckline with puffed sleeves and large bow at the back.

They carried nosegays of peach and ivory sweetheart roses with baby's breath and matching ribbon.

Wesley Scott Rigby of Marietta, Ga. served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were Raymond J. Ellis Jr. of Bay St. Louis, brother of the bride; and Tommy William Kidd Jr. of Waveland, cousin of the groom.

Ushers were Pat Cuevas, George Thorning and Joseph Cabaniss, all of Bay St. Louis. Richard Kidd Jr. of Alpharetta, Ga., cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall.

Following a wedding trip to Rocky Mountain National Park, the couple resides in Bay St. Louis.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Multiple Sclerosis Society

The first post-summer meeting was held in the staff dining room of Gulf Coast Community Hospital in Biloxi. Our group continued to grow over the summer and our membership now numbers 85 as we enter our sixth year. Executive director Anne Plummer of Jackson was guest speaker.

While one of our goals is to provide current medical information for MSers, we never want to forget that our main reason for existence is to provide support for one another. We draw our strength from one another. To continue to be successful, we need everyone's participation.

With the 911 reporting system, many of you have new addresses. For additional information contact Dianne Butera, 388-7032; Pat Gillham, 388-6941; or Annette Lawrence in Pascagoula, 588-6303.

Professional Secretaries International

The Gulf Coast Chapter of Professional Secretaries International held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, Sept. 13 at the Biloxi Mississippi Power district office.

Kathern James, assistant cashier, comptroller's office, Hancock Bank in Gulfport, spoke on personal budgeting and financial planning. James has been employed with Hancock Bank since 1956 and is currently treasurer of the local Quota Club and secretary-treasurer of the 21st District of Quota, International.

There was also discussion concerning the PSI Mississippi Division meeting to be held in Biloxi on May 19-21, 1989.

Professional Secretaries International is the world's leading organization for secretaries, promoting competence and recognition for those in the profession and provides opportunities for continuing education and personal development.

Secretaries interested in the Professional Secretaries International organization may contact Avis O'Hara at 1-865-5784 or Lee Bass at 374-0404 or 872-1096. Meetings are held on the second Tuesday of each month in the Mississippi Power Company Biloxi District Office auditorium at 6 p.m.

Harrison-Hancock Legal Secretaries Association

Attorney Jim Rose was guest speaker of the Sept. 8 meeting of the Harrison-Hancock Legal Secretaries Association. Rose presented a 17-minute video presentation of his May, 1986 trip to the Soviet Union.

Jill Cox of Action Reporters was initiated as a new member. Henrietta Caranna presented a legal education program concerning the Russian court system.

President Debbie Butler and governor Charmayne Freeman reminded the membership of several dates to be noted on the calendar. MALS fall board meeting is to be held in Jackson, Sept. 17; a seminar will be conducted by Mississippi College law librarian Carol Weston legal research. The NALS basic course for the career legal secretary will begin Sept. 20.

Anyone interested should contact Barbara Minick at 864-0649. Oct. 10-14 is Court Observance Week. Harrison-Hancock LSA will present a mock divorce trial (Henpeck v Henpeck) on Saturday, Oct. 1 at the Gulfport Courthouse beginning at 9:30 a.m. The public is invited. NALS fall board meeting will be Nov. 15 in Wichita, Kansas.

The Harrison-Hancock Counties Legal Secretaries Association is a professional, non-profit association dedicated to serving legal secretaries, attorneys, courts and the general public. It is affiliated with the Mississippi Association of Legal Secretaries and the National Association of Legal Secretaries International.

The next meeting will be Thursday, Oct. 13 at the Best Western Inn Beachfront, Hwy. 90 in Gulfport. The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. Wayne Taylor of the Jackson FBI office will be guest speaker.

Anyone interested in the association should contact Glenda Downer for more information at 452-9408.

ON ETV

AUSTIN CITY LIMITS

Rockin' rhythm and blues take center stage when The Fabulous Thunderbirds and Omar and the Howlers appear on 'Austin City Limits' in a rebroadcast at 9 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 24 on Mississippi ETV.

Featuring rough 'n tumble guitar accented with Texas-style R&B combined with Louisiana zydeco hop, the Fabulous Thunderbirds are full of fresh excitement and raw energy that mesmerizes audiences.

Joining the T-birds, Omar and the Howlers add their own style of blues with vocals akin to Howlin' Wolf and musical styles owing to Muddy Waters and Texas Boogie.

Shoreline home burns Sunday

BY D.C. HARVILL
A Shoreline Park home, visible from Highway 603, was consumed by fire early Sunday morning.
Before fire units could respond, the raised, Atlantic Street home of Teddy E. Pruett burned to the ground.
Pruett and his family had left the house at 3:15 Saturday evening and spent the night at the home of a friend. They didn't know the house had burned until they returned on Sunday, according to Fire Marshal Jay Marsh.
The cause of the 1 a.m. fire currently is unknown.

le Kern, Jean Keen, Lisa Cowan, Jeff Claunch, Bill Johnson, Martha Van Peski, Helen J. Cazaubon, Jay Fleuret, Hilda Bourg, Mary Callier, Libby Snell, Jeanette Purchner, May- or Vic Frankiewicz, Jerry Heitzmann, Betsy Ashman, Jack Hode, Norma Haas, Mayola Ratherham, Janet Aime and Ellis Cuevas.
There will be free hot dogs and Cokes for participants beginning at 12:15 p.m. at the entrance to the Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier. Kidd is in charge of the food and refreshments.
Bay St. Louis registration will be handled by Hancock County Extension Service Homemakers in Bay St. Louis and Waveland, Norma Haas, passed primarily as a reaction- ary response to incidents which occurred on the street near black nightclubs at the corner of St. Francis and Sycamore Streets.

The motion to rescind the ordinance was introduced by Councilman John Wilkerson and passed before a full council with only member James Thrif- filey in opposition.
"I've never been happy with Ordinance 320 since the day we passed it," Wilkerson said. "I still have reservations about walking down the street with a coke bottle and (possibly) being arrested."
"We've lived without the ordi- nance for a long time and I don't think we need it now. I agree the police need something, but I said.

"We all like to walk out with our soft drinks; we are a resort area, I don't see anything wrong with that. If a person causes a problem, deal with him; I don't think I should have to put up my beer and liquor because of a few people," Johnson said.
"I never felt like we needed an ordinance that hard. I don't think the police were handling the situation right. They could handle it right if they knew how," he added.
Police Chief Ray Murphy said, "I think they need to do some work on it, it is a good ordi- nance. It wasn't intended to harass anyone. I thought it was a workable, enforcement tool."
Murphy said he thinks an open container law is needed,

Judges' decision on indictment quash expected by Friday

BY DENA BISNETTE
Two Circuit Court judges will decide by Friday whether or not to quash indictments handed problem is not on the face of the indictment, meaning contained in the document itself. Instead, something external to the indictment is whether the indictment was called by the proper who meet in a small room upstairs where the county's collection of lawbooks is housed, which is also used for juries. Thomas explained that merely trying to find room for every one could become a major problem if a Grand Jury is called without prior notification of two courts or boards are meeting. Thomas explained that he and Vlahos had agreed to hear the matter together, although they will rule separately when Vlahos decides the Harrison County case and the indictment of Joseph and Thomas, deciding on all of the other Hancock County indictments.

ordinance was introduced by Councilman John Wilkerson and passed before a full council with only member James Thrif- filey in opposition.
"I've never been happy with Ordinance 320 since the day we passed it," Wilkerson said. "I still have reservations about walking down the street with a coke bottle and (possibly) being arrested."
"We've lived without the ordi- nance for a long time and I don't think we need it now. I agree the police need something, but I think I should have to put up my beer and liquor because of a few people," Johnson said.

"I never felt like we needed an ordinance that hard. I don't think the police were handling the situation right. They could handle it right if they knew how," he added.
Police Chief Ray Murphy said, "I think they need to do some work on it, it is a good ordi- nance. It wasn't intended to harass anyone. I thought it was a workable, enforcement tool."
Murphy said he thinks an open container law is needed.

Judges' decision on indictment quash expected by Friday

BY DENA BISNETTE
Two Circuit Court judges will decide by Friday whether problem is not on the face of the indictment, meaning contained in the indictment itself. Instead, it is something external to the indictment, such as whether the grand jury was properly constituted or whether the indictment was properly returned.

Attorneys are questioning District Attorney Thomas' authority to have the grand jury return an indictment without prior notification of two courts or boards of directors. Thomas explained that he and Vlahos had agreed to hear the matter together, although they will handle separately, with Vlahos deciding the Harrison County case and the indictment of Joseph and Thomas deciding on all the other Hancock County indictments.

Judges' decision on indictment quash expected by Friday

BY DENA BISNETTE
Two Circuit Court judges will decide by Friday whether or not problem is not on the face of the indictment, meaning contained in the indictment itself. Instead, it is something external to the indictment, such as whether the grand jury was properly constituted or whether the indictment was properly returned.

Attorneys are questioning whether District Attorney Thomas had the authority to call the Grand Jury or that authority rests with the judges. Also on the agenda is the absence of written minutes from the district attorney's meeting with the jurors.

Another question that arises during arguments is whether it is proper for a judge to recall a Grand Jury without notifying the Circuit judges. Thomas said that having a Grand Jury is not a major function of the Harrison County Court as far as facilities are concerned, because there is no courtroom there which is used for the Harrison County Court. However, the Court must compete with Chancery Court and the Superior Court. The courtroom next to the building is used for proceedings when the circuit judges are in session, and lawyers who meet in a small room upstairs where the county collection of lawbooks is housed, which is also used for justice.

Thomas explained that more likely a Grand Jury is recalled without prior notification if two courts or boards are meeting.

Thomas explained that he and Vilano had agreed to hear the matter together, although they will rule separately, with Vilano deciding the Harrison County case and the indictment of Joseph and Thomas deciding on all of the other Harrison County indictments.
